

Old Pueblo Archaeology Center Presents Prehistory of the Southwest: The Hohokam Culture of Southern Arizona

An Advanced Course for General Interest or Arizona Archaeological Society Certification

Instructor: Archaeologist Allen Dart, RPA
(Executive Director, Old Pueblo Archaeology Center)

NINE SESSIONS:

Eight 2-hour sessions at Old Pueblo Archaeology Center, 6:30-8:30 p.m. Tuesday evenings Oct. 5-Nov. 23, 2010

+ One lecturing field trip to Tucson-area archaeological sites, 8 a.m. to noon on Saturday Oct 16, 2010

This “Advanced Prehistory of the Southwest” class explores the archaeology of the Hohokam culture of the American Southwest. Developed by the Arizona Archaeological Society (AAS) for its Certification Program (<http://www.azarchsoc.org/certification.htm>), the class includes discussions of Hohokam origins, subsistence and settlement systems, social and organizational systems, material culture (including ceramics, other artifacts, and architecture), social interaction within and beyond the Hohokam culture’s regional boundaries, and ideas on Hohokam religion and trade. The AAS’s basic “Prehistory of the Southwest” class is recommended as a pre-requisite but this is negotiable with the instructor. Each student is expected to prepare a research report to be presented orally or in written form.

The 20-hour class provides an up-to-date synthesis of southern Arizona’s Formative period for anyone interested in southwestern archaeology, and can be taken for Certification by the Arizona Archaeological Society.

Class fee $50 ($40 for Old Pueblo Archaeology Center members & Pueblo Grande Museum Auxiliary members)*

RESERVATIONS ARE REQUIRED
Registration Deadline Sept. 30, 2010

in the Tucson Unified School District's Ajo Service Center just west of La Cholla Blvd.
(½-mile north of John F. Kennedy Park)

* Fee does not include the cost of recommended text (The Hohokam Millennium by Paul R. Fish and Suzanne K. Fish, editors) or the cost of AAS membership and Certification Program registration

The Arizona Archaeological Society (AAS) Certification Program is designed with the help of professional archaeologists to give training in various aspects of archaeology outside an academic degree program. Because most courses provide field experience in addition to classroom training, students can develop those skills that make them a qualified and valuable member of an archaeological project. The student may elect to join the Certification Program where records will be kept of courses taken, and where certificates will be issued upon successful completion of the course requirements. AAS members who are not seeking certification may take these courses without joining the certification program.

To enroll in the Certification Program an individual must be a member of the Arizona Archaeological Society (AAS), complete the Certification Program Application form, and pay a one-time fee of $10. When the application is accepted, the Department Recorder will establish a file in the individual's name to maintain a permanent record of qualifications. The applicant will receive a certificate that that the instructor will sign as each course is completed and the individual becomes certified in that aspect of archaeology.
