

Old Pueblo Archaeology Center presents:

Ancient Native American Pottery Replication Workshop: Decorated Wares of the 1300s

with Ceramist Andy Ward

Old Pueblo Archaeology Center
April 12, 13, 26, 2014

www.oldpueblo.org

This workshop will focus on replicating the pottery types produced by Pueblo peoples in Southern Arizona between 1270 and 1450 AD. Some of this region's most elaborately decorated and widely traded pottery was produced by Ancestral Pueblo immigrants who came here from Northern Arizona and Southern Utah, these pottery styles have fascinated archaeologists and artists for decades. Participants in this workshop will learn the history of these pottery types and experience the entire process of producing them, processing raw materials, forming and decorating vessels on the weekend of April 12-13, culminating in an authentic, outdoor pottery firing on the morning of April 26th.

Fee $57

($46 for Old Pueblo Archaeology Center and Pueblo Grande Museum Auxiliary members)

Each participant must provide a small water bowl, hand towel, & 2 plastic grocery bags
Clay & all other class materials are provided.

To register or for more information contact Old Pueblo Archaeology Center at 520-798-1201 or info@oldpueblo.org.