Yoeme (Yaqui Indian) settlement in Arizona stemmed from the Mexican government's war with the Yoeme in the state of Sonora in the 1890s and early 1900s. From 1880 through the early 1900s, after Mexico began deporting Yoeme from their homeland in Sonora to other Mexican states, a steady stream of Yoeme migrated into southern Arizona. By 1908 hundreds of them had fled to the U.S. to settle permanently, and in the 1920s more of them came here to seek political asylum and join existing southern Arizona Yoeme settlements. By 1940 there were about 3,000 Yoeme in Arizona, mostly living in the well-established villages of Libre (Barrio Libre) and Pascua in Tucson, Yoem Pueblo and Wiilo Kampo in Marana, and others near Eloy, Somerton, Phoenix, and Scottsdale. After granting federal recognition to the Pascua Yaqui Tribe, in 1978 the U.S. Government established the Pascua Yaqui Indian Reservation (originally called New Pascua).

This tour will visit places in the Tucson and Marana areas settled historically by Yoeme who fled Mexico. Stops will include the Tucson-area sites of Bwe'u Hu'upa Village, the San Martin Church and plaza in the 39th Community (Barrio Libre), Pascua, and possibly the San Ignacio Church and plaza. Then we will drive to Marana and stop at the sites of Ili Hu'upa, Yoem Pueblo (including the San Juan Church and plaza), and Wiilo Kampo. Along the way, Mr. Molina may point out the Bwia Bwalko (Soft Earth) site east of the Santa Cruz River and Chukui Kawi west of Yoem Pueblo.

Tour Leader Felipe S. Molina, a Yoem Pueblo resident, was taught the indigenous language, culture, and history of the Yoemem (Yaquis) by his maternal grandfather and grandmother, his grandmother's cousin, and several elders from Tucson's original Pascua Village. After he retired from teaching he completed manuals on these topics for the Pascua Yaqui Social Service Department and helped document Yoeme family stories of Guadalupe Village for the Pascua Yaqui Tribe Enrollment Department. He still teaches the traditional songs for the maaso (white-tailed deer) dance to Yoeme youth who will be the Arizona's Yoeme communities' future Deer Dance singers. An Old Pueblo Archaeology Center Board of Directors member, he co-authored the Yoeme/English Dictionary with Herminia Valenzuela and David Shaul, Maso Bwikam - The Yaqui Deer Songs and The Coyote Songs with Larry Evers, The Old Man of the Fiesta with James "Big Jim" Griffith, The Yaquis and Their Place with Octaviana Salazar and Herminia Valenzuela, and the upcoming Yoeme Ethnobotany with Richard Felger.
