

Mapping Yaqui History

Free online presentation by Anabel Galindo, PhD (Yaqui)

Segment of a Spanish colonial period map showing lands of the Indigenous Hiaqui (Yaqui), Pimería, and Sobas in New Spain

Tuesday Evening
May 10, 2022

7 to 8:30 p.m. Arizona Time
(Same as Pacific Daylight Time)

In her University of Arizona doctoral dissertation in history, Mapping Yaqui Mobility: Community, Identity, and Labor, 1770–1940, Anabel Galindo explores the Yaqui community, identity, and mobility from the late colonial to the early 20th century. Using mobility as a theoretical framework, she emphasizes the importance of moving away from misconstrued notions about Indigenous Peoples and their history.

In this presentation for Old Pueblo Archaeology Center's Indigenous Interests series, Dr. Galindo will focus on Yaqui history and how her dissertation work fits in the literature, and will discuss her work with the Pascua Yaqui Tribe of Arizona.

Mapping Yaqui History . . .

Our guest presenter for this program is Anabel Galindo, PhD. Dr. Galindo received her PhD in history from the University of Arizona. Currently she is a Mellon Postdoctoral Fellow at Arizona State University's Center for Imagination in the Borderlands, and she works for the Pascua Yaqui Tribe Department of Language and Culture as a history instructor, developing classes and curriculum for community members of all ages to engage in Yaqui history through a multi-disciplinary approach.

Anabel is a proud mother of two beautiful daughters, and together they are learning the beautiful Yaqui language.

Old Pueblo Archaeology Center's "Indigenous Interests" free Zoom webinar series provides Native American presenters with a forum for discussing issues important to Indigenous peoples today.

The series is hosted by Martina Dawley (Hualapai-Diné), Anabel Galindo (Yaqui), and Maegan Lopez (Tohono O'odham), all of whom are members of Old Pueblo's board of directors. The series has received support from Arizona Humanities and many of its online viewers.
